

Jana Cooke

Associate

Jana Cooke specialises primarily in family and inheritance law.

In family law, she provides clients with comprehensive legal advice and represents them in proceedings concerning the arrangements of relations to minor children, including custody, contact arrangements and the determination of child support, as well as in divorce proceedings. Jana also advises clients on matrimonial property law, particularly on matters relating to the settlement of the community property of spouses.

In inheritance law, Jana advises and represents clients both in preventive estate-planning matters and in probate proceedings and inheritance disputes.

Prior to joining our law firm, she worked for eleven years at a Prague-based general practice law firm, where she provided legal advice primarily on family law, civil law, energy law, and employment law, as well as on civil litigation and dispute resolution at all stages of court and other proceedings.
