

Ondřej Kašpar

Associate

Ondřej Kašpar specialises in electronic legal acts, information technology, media and telecommunications law, data protection, and contract law.

In the field of electronic legal acts, he focuses on establishing appropriate principles of electronic legal acts within both private and public organizations, utilizing electronic signatures and identities, and ensuring their legal sustainability.

In the field of information technology, media and telecommunications law, Ondřej is dedicated to technological transactions, software licensing, and the delivery and implementation of IT solutions, including support services. His expertise extends to projects for both private companies and public authorities.

In personal data protection, he provides comprehensive assistance to domestic and international companies on personal data processing, including compliance with legal requirements for commercial communications and telemarketing, and setting up procedures that meet local, EU, and international data protection standards. Ondřej also addresses data protection aspects related to the introduction of new technologies, including artificial intelligence.

He leverages his expertise in these areas to support clients in contract law, assisting with the preparation, review, and negotiation of comprehensive contractual documentation across various industries such as IT, transportation, and defence.

Prior to joining HAVEL & PARTNERS in 2023, Ondřej worked for several years at a leading Czech law firm and as an in-house counsel in an international IT company.
